

Trevechoes

Trevecca Nazarene University

RAs Coming to Redford and Shingler

By: Frank Lennon

Redford and Shingler Apartments residents may see some changes in-store for the 2002-2003 school year. School administrators are planning on adding Resident Assistants (RAs) to these buildings.

According to Ronda Lilienthal, Assistant Dean of Residential Life, the assistants will be added to work with the buildings' Residential Director (RD). She hopes that the added manpower will help keep the apartment residents "in the loop" in regards to campus events.

Redford Apartments will have an addition of two RAs next year.

While the dean made no mention that the added authority would help enforce university policy, some students are hoping the extra set of eyes will keep other

Continued to page 2

The Joshua Project Continues

By: Lora Bourland

Trevecca is working hard at her newest project. The Joshua Project, which takes the place of the annual CAUSE trip, has excited the campus and energized students and faculty alike.

The project emerged after the growing disappointment that there was to be no overseas missions trip this year because of world events. Immediately plans began being formed to make an in-States trip to Appalachia, but those plans seemed to fall through as well. After careful consideration, and in hopes that CAUSE would not 'skip a beat' in it's ministry focus, the Joshua Project was formed.

Chaplain Tim Green had some answers to the question that some may still be asking: "Who is Joshua?" Joshua is a young man of about 20; he is from Uganda, Africa. Some may remember the first chapel service of fall semester when Dr. Green spoke of the CAUSE trip to Uganda and how the participants had met and grown to love Joshua, who was in charge of one of the two work sites they were at.

Joshua is from a large family,

Continued to page 3

Inside:

Upcoming events	2
Career program	3
Movie Review	4
Nashville Theatre	4
Lady Trojans	6
Golf Teams	7
Just for FUN	8

Who says there's nothing to do?

By: Eric Johnson

While everyone is surely anticipating Spring Break, there might be a couple of good reasons for returning to "dear ole TNU," especially considering what Student Government has planned in the upcoming months.

First of all the senior class's "Don't Shave-a-Thon" has officially ended, so congratulate all of those less-furry friends of yours and congratulate the senior class on an innovative, yet curious spin on body hair.

In the spring semester tradition of campaigning and running for office, you have probably seen a few petitions being passed around. The petitions are for the upcoming ASB Elections, which will occur the week after Spring Break, starting with speeches on Tuesday the 12th. Make sure to come out and vote so that you can help determine who will be representing the student body next year and especially at the upcoming NSLC.

This year's Nazarene Student Leadership Conference is being held here at Trevecca. Student leaders from all of the Nazarene colleges and universities will join us during the first week of April.

Work on the All-School Project will begin soon. A vote was taken during chapel to choose this year's project, and the sand volleyball pit, which will be installed in the Pavilion area, was the winner.

The sophomore class council, who brought us the Valentine's Banquet, will be sponsoring "Mr. TNU," the event where each class nominates its best and brightest males for a pageant competition. Nominations are going on all this week and the actual event will be March 22nd.

SGA Elections for class councils will be at the end of March as well, so start thinking about what you would like to do so as to serve your class and university better for next year. More information and access to petitions will become available after Spring Break.

The much-anticipated Junior/Senior Banquet will be on April 20th. The Junior Class promises an elegant evening for the upper classmen.

The Freshman Class council will have class t-shirts on sale the week after Easter Break. The Freshman Class also promises to host another "exam-time" game show with aims to ease those stressful times and add a bit of humor to your lives.

While school is drawing towards a close for this semester, the events have just begun. So make sure to come out and be a part of all the happenings that SGA and ASB are making possible for the student body.

Trevecca

Box 402; Ext. 7159

Editor:
Amanda Winstead

Arts/Entertainment Editor:
Miranda Sneed

Sports Editor:
Meredith Watkins

Staff Writers:
Wendy Allen
Lora Bourland
Billy Byler
Eric Johnson
Frank Lennon
David Patrick
Matt Seaton

RAs Coming Cont.

residents in-line. However, this doesn't mean that all students will appreciate the extra authority.

"It's only fair that everyone must follow the rules," said David Burger, junior. "Besides, if we don't do anything wrong, what do we have to worry about?"

In the current plan, two RAs would be added to Redford and one in Shingler. This would allow either the RD or an RA to be housed at each breezeway.

If you would like to be considered to be in the apartments for the next school year, sign-ups will be held in April. All prospective residents must have completed 64 credit hours, hold a minimum GPA of 2.0, and be in good standing with Student Development.

Careers Now Program Offers Paid Internship Opportunities

Internships are an essential part of a well-rounded college education. Many students know that they need one, but do not know where to start.

The Career and Counseling Center on campus can help you find the right internship to provide a quality, educational experience. Often students want to find a real-world work experience and a paycheck with the same internship.

Those internships are hard to find, but the State of Tennessee has developed a program to help with this dilemma.

Careers Now is an internship program that is offered by Tennessee's three constitutional officers, the Secretary of State, Treasurer, and Comptroller of the Treasury. This internship program offers payment of approximately $9 per hour.

"We have been able to place 25% of our Careers

Now participants into full time jobs since the beginning of the program. They are great employees. The state and the students are very privileged to have this opportunity," said Ann Taylor-Tharpe, Careers Now director.

The program offers experience in many fields for students with various majors including: accounting, computer science, economics, finance, library science, business administration,

English, geoscience, history, journalism, law, marketing, political science, and more.

Juniors, senior, and graduate students with a 3.0 GPA are eligible to apply. This opportunity is offered during the fall, spring, and summer semesters and is located in downtown Nashville. For more information consult www.treasury.state.tn.us/now.

Joshua Project cont.

but he has already lost 14-17 of his siblings to the AIDS virus that is raging in his part of the world. Joshua has not had much schooling, but he has a definite call to the ministry, and his dream for several years has been to attend African Nazarene University. The price of $1700 per semester is staggering to a young man who makes little money, but he knows that God's Will is for him to attend the school.

In faith, he is already there, getting what is equivalent to our GED so that he can begin his studies there as a ministerial student this fall. He is already a leader among his people, and is respected in his village by everyone from the youngest child to the elders. He plans to return to Uganda to minister among his people when his studies are completed.

Dr Green hopes that this will become a true missions experience for the entire campus. He stated that what CAUSE is all about is extending ministry to other parts of the world. However, there is nothing in that goal statement that requires us to be there. What the Lord can do through us and through Joshua for the next 50 years is incredible to think about. Knowing that we can have a direct impact and hand in his ministry is an awesome thought.

The Joshua Project has really become a campus wide enterprise. Not only students, but staff members and faculty as well have dug deep into their pockets to help this man who only a handful of people from Trevecca have met. At the employee chapel nearly $900 was raised, and in the student chapel offering $500 was raised, the highest amount students have ever given in a single offering.

Other ways to raise funds for Joshua are appearing all over campus—the dorms and apartments are having "Joshua Jars", King's Kids is doing a penny drive, and several clubs, organizations, choirs, and even departmental majors are pitching in as well. To this date $1977.95 has been raised, which will more than pay for his first semester.

This is the first missions opportunity in which all of our community has joined efforts. Never before has there been a ministry opportunity that faculty, students, and staff alike have been so passionate about. Dr. Green wonders if we aren't this year setting a precedent, that even when we go back next year to having an actual CAUSE trip that we will still be able to do something like this. This is truly a way to unite the campus for a common goal, and so far it has been very successful. A final note: If every student on campus gave $10-15, we as a campus could pay for Joshua's entire education. We could all be encouraged to think and pray about contributing to the effort.

If it is good enough for Oscar...

By: Miranda Sneed

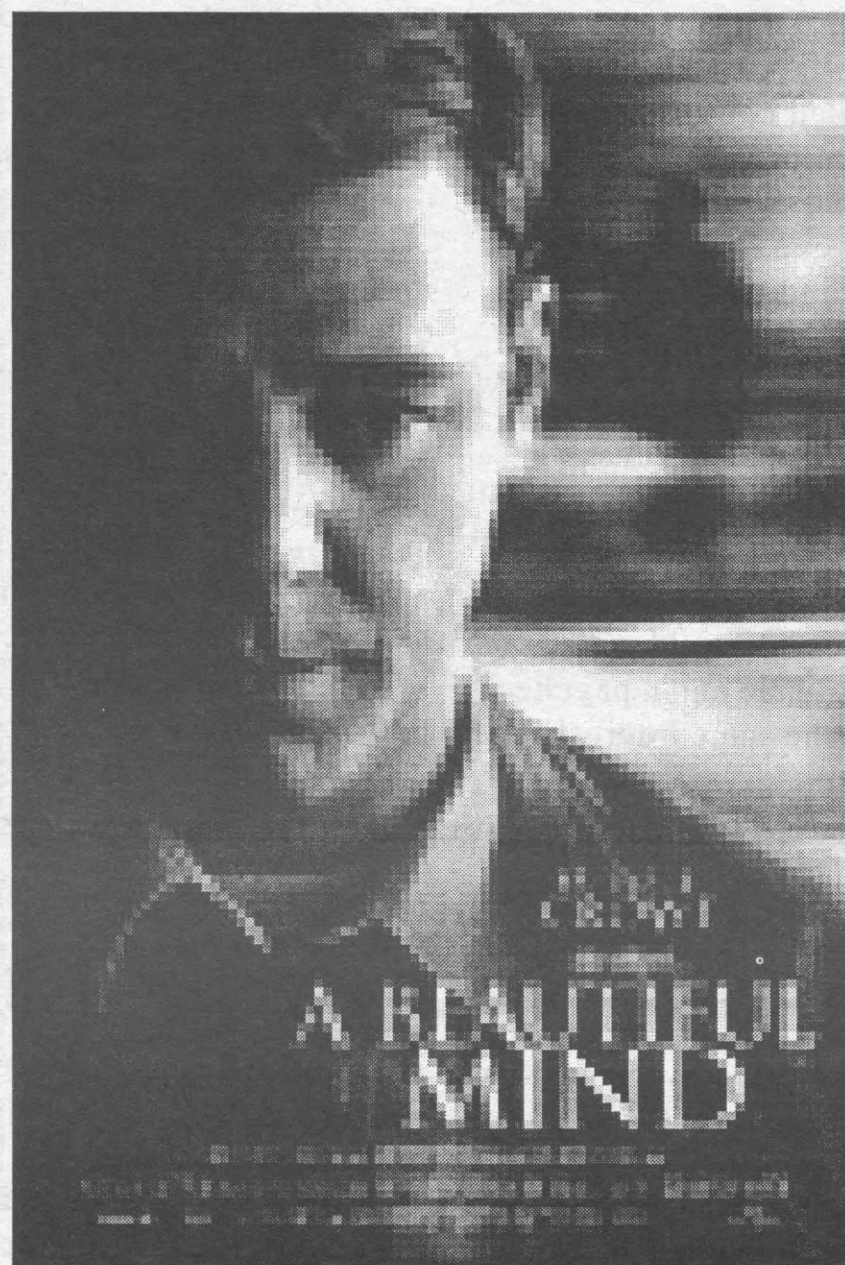

Russell Crowe has done it again. For the second consecutive year, he has managed to capture the attention of not only the average movie fan, but also film critics and Academy members. And it is a little wonder. Crowe has managed to prove his versatility, moving easily from his macho gladiator image to portraying a tortured, gangling schizophrenic with startling, yet admirable conviction.

A Beautiful Mind, nominated for an Academy Award for Best Picture, unfurls the true story of John Forbes Nash, Jr., an eccentric brilliant mathematician whose career is disrupted by paranoid schizophrenia. This film is not only the tale of a man's battle to overcome his disability, but a story of unconditional love.

The audience meets Nash as a young Princeton student, brilliant but lacking social skills. An astonishing discovery that revolutionizes economics assists Nash in moving on to teaching at M.I.T. and doing code-breaking work for an ominous government agent (Ed Harris). It is at this time that Nash meets, falls in love with, and marries Alicia, portrayed by Jennifer Connelly in her most convincing role yet. The nightmare begins not long after, though, when Nash's hallucinations are discovered and he is diagnosed in the advanced stages of schizophrenia.

Although Ron Howard may have begun directing

Continued to page 5

Copyright 2001 Universal Studios and DreamWorks LLC

People's Branch Theatre Presents The Fever

(Nashville, TN) – People's Branch Theatre presents an experiential theatre piece, blowing the fourth wall of traditional theatre to bits with The Fever by Wallace Shawn, one of America's most engaging and controversial contemporary playwrights. PBT Artistic Director Brian Niece will direct and Denice Hicks will star in The Fever, which won the 1991 Obie Award for Best Play. The Fever previews April 3, opens April 4, and runs April 5-7 & 17-20 at Darkhorse Theater. Tickets range from $8 - $16 and can be purchased by calling (615) 254-0008 or emailing tickets@peoplesbranch.org. More information can be found at www.peoplesbranch.org.

The nameless character of this mesmerizing theatrical journey struggles with memories and her own consciousness of living a privileged life without awareness. With compassion, eloquence, and ruthless self-scrutiny, the speaker discovers that having good intentions toward the dispossessed is not enough. As the speaker shares her agony over her own responsibilities, she reaches the conclusion that awareness without action is useless. At the play's conclusion, the speaker has succeeded in defining her own guilt, but is uncertain whether or not she has the personal courage to join in the struggle. Aghast at her own weakness, she longs for forgiveness and the strength to earn it.

Director Brian Niece says the play, "documents a process, a struggle that exists in the soul of anyone willing to look at self closely. Only the best plays can delight and disturb. The Fever does both." For audiences, this play will be an experiment in the unexpected, incorporating all five senses. Unusual sights and sounds are combined with electrifying tastes, smells, and surprising sensations.

Continued to page 5

The Fever cont.

Denice Hicks, the lone actor in The Fever, says, "Beauty and mystery combine in this piece to distill a fresh awareness of ourselves. Wallace Shawn turns the lights on to the thoughts we all have that keep us up at night." On working with Denice Hicks, Brian Niece states, "It continues to be an honor to collaborate with such a gifted artist. This time is especially bittersweet, as it may be the last before Denice takes her year long trip around the country. We've developed an artistic understanding which enables us to leap into the unknown to create some fantastic theatre."

With only ten performances, this will be an event that audiences shouldn't wait to hear about!

All performances are at Darkhorse Theater, 4710 Charlotte Pike, Nashville, TN.

Call (615) 254-0008 for reservations or email tickets@peoplesbranch.org.

Look for THE NORMALS Live in your area!

When:	February 27 at 8:00 pm
Where:	12th and Porter 114 12th Ave. North Nashville
Cost:	$8.00

Good Enough cont.

this film to completely deviate from his last project (2000's The Grinch), he has created much more than a simple crowd-pleaser and tear-jerker. A Beautiful Mind may alleviate some of the real Nash's brusqueness, but his despair is depicted with fresh emotion. Howard sought to create a sense of originality in this familiar story, and the result is convincing without being manipulative.

At first glance, A Beautiful Mind may be mistakenly perceived as a film based purely on mathematical theories and formulas. Rather, viewers need not be mathematical experts to enjoy this movie, although the left-brained individual may relate to Nash more than someone who is right-brained. This story, however, is ultimately about human shortcomings and one's ability to triumph over them.

In a month where romance becomes lost in a Valentine's swirl of hearts, candy, and flowers, A Beautiful Mind defies most Hollywood portrayals that love is all about passion and obsession. Instead, John and Alicia Nash fight for their love, and prove that it is painful, heartbreaking work, but work that is well worth the battle. While fairy tales may be great for pretending, this compelling expression of love touches a deeper emotion in the film's viewers, making A Beautiful Mind one of the most accomplished films of the year.

Lady Trojans Begin the Season with Success

By: Meredith Watkins

The Lady Trojan softball team is swinging back into action with the start of the spring season. After coming off a 5-0 record in the fall, all expectations are pretty high for success.

Leading this year's squad are seniors Stacey Lingenfelter and Amanda "Sal" Hall. Hall is now recovering from knee cartilage surgery so they are anxiously awaiting her return.

The pitching staff for this season is stacked with lots of talent with Junior Wendy Allen leading the way with three years of experience. Following her will be sophomore Lisa Hethorn and freshman Hollie Shane.

Both the infield and outfield will be very competitive this season with many versatile players who are able to play multiple positions.

Juniors Courtney Alexander and Faith Reynolds, sophomore Courtney Dickens, and freshmen Brandy Miller, Hollie Shane, and Jamie Toomey are the top prospects for the outfield. Hall is also an outfielder, and will see playing time when her recovery is complete.

The team is excited about the return of last season's red shirt Rone Phelps to the infield. Phelps will see playing time at third base and at the shortstop position. Lingenfelter will also play at these two positions. When Allen is not toeing the rubber, she will be seeing time at second base along with Toomey. First base is also a heated corner for three very eligible players, junior Jennifer Arnold and freshmen Allyson Ballinger and Hollie Shane.

Sophomores Meredith Watkins and Brandy Miller will switch off guarding home in the catcher position.

Offensively, the Lady Trojans are going to be a big threat with five left handed hitters and a great deal of speed. Also returning with five homeruns last season and three homeruns from the fall season, power hitter Wendy Allen brings a great deal to the team.

Continued to page 7

ASB Elections

Don't forget to get your petitions turned in! ASB Elections will begin March 12th.

What do you think?

Submit an opinion article or letter to the editor by email to :

ARWinstead@trevecca.edu or by campus mail to :

Box 402

Lady Trojans Cont.

The girls first match up took place February 22. Despite the cold weather, the Lady Trojans heated up the diamond with two huge wins over the Mountain State University Lady Cougars.

In the first game the Lady Trojans dominated the Lady Cougars 10-3. The biggest hits of the game came from senior Stacey Lingenfelter with a 3-run homerun and junior Courtney Alexander blasting a grand slam.

Junior Wendy Allen got the win playing pitcher for the first game with freshman Hollie "Wally" Shane coming in for the save.

Phelps returned to her first game fired up and ready to play. She batted .1000 and had no errors on the field.

The enthusiasm carried over in the second game for the Lady Trojans as they kept the bats hot and contributed more hits and more runs. This game ended in five innings as the Lady Trojans pinned the eight-run rule over on the Lady Cougars. The final score of the game was 10-2.

Sophomore Lisa Hethorn showed her many tricks on the mound and got the win for the second game. Shane also came in for the save in this competition.

The girls looked great on Friday and should continue to play well together throughout the season.

2001-2002 Men's Golf Team

Golf Teams Begin New Season

Both the men's and women's golf teams will begin their spring seasons soon. Watch the Trevecca web-site for updates on their tournaments.

Men's 2002 Golf Schedule

March

11 Trevecca/Freed-Hardeman Tournament
Hermitage Golf Course (General's Retreat),
Old Hickory, Tennessee
21-22 Cumberland University Invitational
WindTree Golf Course, Mt. Juliet, Tennessee

April

8-9 Freed-Hardeman Invitational
Shiloh Falls Golf Course, Pickwick Dam, Tennessee

15-16 TranSouth Athletic Conference
Tournament
Hermitage Golf Course, Hermitage, Tennessee

29-30 Regional XI Tournament
Wasiato Winds Golf Course, Pineville,
Kentucky

Women's 2002 Golf Schedule

March

21-22 Cumberland University Spring Classic
Windtree Golf Course
25-26 Berry College Invitational
Horseleg Plantation Country Club

April

2 TNU Women's Invitational
Old Natchez Country Club
8 KY Cumberland College Spring Invitational
Tri-Country Country Club
14-15 TranSouth Athletic Conference
Tournament
Hermitage Golf Course
25-26 NAIA Regional XI Tournament Fields
Ferry Golf Course

Byler's Bit: Pill Snorts

By: Billy Byler

OK, I have this suitemate. He's a pretty good guy so in order to protect his innocence I will disguise his name. My suitemate, Wamin Jentworth was preparing for bed one evening when I came in. As part of his nightly routine he takes a pill. I don't really know what this pill's purpose is. I've never questioned it. It's like wearing socks. There's really no logical reasoning behind it, I've just always accepted it as the routine. It's the same with my suitemate's daily pill. It's not a dangerous pill or anything like that really. Just a pill. Personally, I don't like taking pills, but you know the old cliché, "where there's a pill, there's a way."

This particular night, my suitemate downed his pill, as normal, with only a small sip of water and headed off to bed. I, being the good friend that I am, came into his room and asked for food. He said no and jumped into bed where he suddenly realized that something was not quite right. I, being the good friend that I am, quickly ran up to him and asked for more food. It was at this time that he leaped out of bed, ran towards the bathroom, and began making snorting sounds much like that of an angered bull elephant with a tourist stuck up his nose. Not yet having any food, I ran to his aid.

"What's wrong?" I asked as I rounded the corner into the bathroom. I immediately wished I hadn't asked. There stood my roommate, stooped over the sink, water full blast, inhaling, through his nostrils, several gallons of Benson Dorm tap water.

"The pill!" my suitemate said through gurgled water bubbles, "I didn't (gurgle) swallow it right and (gurgle) it's stuck up my nose (gurgle)!" Needless to say, I stopped asking for food.

"OK, let me get this straight," I said, having way too much fun with this whole situation, "you took a pill, thought you swallowed it, but didn't really, and when you laid down it went up into the back of your sinuses?!"

"Gurgle" nodded my suitemate.

I then began to laugh so hard that my side hurt and would have continued laughing had it not been for the fact that I couldn't laugh that hard and look at my suitemate at the same time. Finally, after a full five minutes, I got control of myself, wiped the tears from my eyes, and tried to help him.

Apparently, the pill, after becoming lodged up his nasal passages had begun to dissolve leaving an incredible burning sensation in his nostrils much like when you guzzle a 20 ounce bottle of root beer while trying to burp with your mouth closed (not that I would know).

So basically, after several attempts to cough out the lodged wayward pill, my suitemate was able to, for the most part, clear his nasal passages. "What really did it," he later told me, "was when you gave me that cup, and I filled it with water and sniffed the water up through my nose. It was kind of gross, but that really flushed everything out." I'd like to mention that the cup is now his.

So I'd like to warn all you students, be careful when taking a pill. I tried to extend this story further by doing research on the web. I typed in "water snorts" on a popular search engine and discovered that Garrison Keillor of Minnesota Public Radio is the state expert of wildlife snorts and animal calls. I am completely not making this up. In fact, he has a website stating that Garrison Keillor is "the name to trust when it comes to animal calls." But, I don't know my suitemate made some pretty impressive sounds.

Life With Trevor
created 02/14/02 by Jacob Ward

